Inspired by the classic French meunière sauce. I added grapes because I thought the nuttiness from brown butter would pair well with the roasted grape flavor. And it did! Capers added a nice brininess. Finished with a splash of fresh yuzu juice and some chopped parsley to balance the whole dish. It's decadent, bright and easy! A quick weekday dinner for yourself or to enjoy with a friend.

When cooking the fish in butter, be mindful of the heat. Too hot and your butter will burn and the sauce will have a bitterness to it. Too cold and your fish will become a soggy mess. You want to maintain a medium heat throughout the cooking.

Recipe: Serves 1-2

- 1 6-10 oz trout, butterflied
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- All Purpose flour, for coating (about 1/4 cup)
- 4 Tbsp unsalted butter
- 1 cup seedless red grapes, sliced
- 2 tsp capers, rinsed
- 1 Tbsp minced fresh parsley
- 1 Tbsp yuzu juice, or lemon juice
- Lemon wedge, for serving

1. Season trout with salt and pepper. Dredge fish in flour and shake off any excess.
2. In a skillet, melt butter over medium heat until it begins to foam. Carefully add fish, skin side down and cook until skin is golden brown and crispy. Adjust heat as needed to not burn the butter. About 5-6 minutes.

3. Flip fish over and cook another 2 minutes until the fish is cooked through.
4. Remove fish from pan and set aside skin side up.
5. Turn off heat and add grapes, capers, and yuzu juice. Residual heat should be enough to warm up grapes to release some of its' juices.
6. Season sauce with salt and pepper. Add a couple of drops of water if the sauce reduced too much.
7. Finish sauce with parsley and pour over cooked fish.

Was the fresh yuzu juice the Momofuku brand?
